

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

John A. Dix, Secretary of the State of New-York, then attended in the Assembly chamber, and duly administered to the members present the oath prescribed by the tenth article of the Constitution of this State.

The House then proceeded to choose by ballot a Speaker; and the ballots having been taken and counted, it appeared that Charles Humphrey was duly elected, and he was placed in the chair accordingly.

On motion of Mr. Dayan,

Mr. Herttell offered for the consideration of the House, a resolution, in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, That the Clerk cause to be procured for the use of this House, diagrams of the Senate and Assembly chambers; Constitution of the United States and of the State of New-York, with marginal notes; Articles of Confederation of the States; order of business in the Senate and Assembly; joint rules and orders, and the rules and orders of the Senate and Assembly; an alphabetical list of the members of both Houses, with their places of residence; a list of the members of this House by counties, and a list of senators arranged according to their districts; the standing committees of both Houses; the select committees of both Houses on the Governor's message; a list of the State or salary officers, and their respective salaries; an alphabetical list of the several towns and counties in this State, with the number of inhabitants in each, according to the last census of this State and of the United States; the estimated quantity of acres of land, and the value of real and personal estate; the amount of canal tolls received at each of the offices in the State; a list of the banks and insurance companies in the State, with the amount of their capital, and the time when their charter will expire; statement of rates of toll on the New-York canals; list of banks subject to the Safety fund law; statement of the funds of the State for 1834; list of members of the twenty-third Congress, and a calendar for 1835, and a map of the State of New-York: And to have the same bound in a pocket volume, and deliver a copy thereof to each of the members and officers of this House.

Ordered, That Mr. Lockwood and Mr. Wager be a committee to wait upon the Senate with a like message.

A message from the Senate, delivered by Mr. Van Schaick and Mr. Fox, was received, informing that they were a committee to announce to this House that the Senate had met, and was ready to proceed to business.

On motion of Mr. Palmer,

Resolved, That the Clerk be directed to furnish each member with the usual articles of stationary, of as good quality as those provided for the Senate.

Mr. Quackenboss reported, that pursuant to the order of the House, Mr. Pettit and himself had waited upon the Governor, and informed him that this House had met, and was ready to proceed to business; and that the Governor had been pleased to say that he would immediately communicate his message to the Assembly.

Mr. Lockwood reported, that pursuant to the order of the House, Mr. Wager and himself had waited upon the Senate, and informed them that this House had met, and was ready to proceed to business.

A message from the Governor, delivered by his private secretary, was read, in the words following, to wit:

FELLOW-CITIZENS OF THE SENATE AND ASSEMBLY:

The people of this State having recently selected me to discharge the duties of their chief magistrate for a second term, I avail myself of the present occasion to express my grateful acknowledgments for this renewed manifestation of their confidence, and to assure them that my best efforts shall be devoted to their service.

At no former period have the United States occupied a more elevated position than at present, in relation to foreign powers. The claims for depredations formerly committed on the property of our merchants have been sustained by ably conducted negotiations, and admitted in almost all instances by solemn treaties; our commerce is extended to nearly every region of the globe; and our flag respected by all nations.

In adverting to the internal affairs of our country we find few causes for discontent and many for congratulation. The general government is administered with wisdom, and with a special regard to the principles on which it was founded; our national debt is now extinguished; our public revenues exceed our wants; the burden of taxation has been within a few years greatly diminished; considerable progress has been lately made in reconstructing the barriers which were erected to resist the encroachments of federal power, but which were partially overthrown by the errors of past legislation; and there is now good reason to hope that the general government, in relation to its practical operations, will soon become in all respects what it was designed to be by its wise and patriotic founders.

But your attention is chiefly to be directed to the internal affairs of our own State; it is to them your powers as legislators extend, and to them, in an especial manner, your duties relate.

In reviewing the events of the past year, your attention will be necessarily arrested by the extraordinary state of things which existed at its commencement, and continued some time thereafter. Shortly before this period, an unwonted prosperity prevailed throughout the State; the bounties of Providence had been showered upon us with a liberal hand; we had been favored with a fruitful season; labor in all the branches of industry found a ready employment and received a fair reward; the characteristic enterprise of the people was stimulated to great activity; our internal trade exceeded in amount and extent all former example; and our foreign commerce presented sure indications of being in a sound and healthful state. There was then nothing either in our internal condition or external relations which did not presage, to the mind of ordinary observers at least, the continuance of this high state of prosperity; but it suddenly passed away, and was succeeded by a period of great pecuniary embarrassment. It is not to the present purpose to trace minutely the operation of the causes which wrought this change; but all will concur, I think, in ascribing it mainly to the contest relative to re-chartering the Bank of the United States.

This Bank, since its first establishment, has been deprecated by many, as an institution existing without constitutional authority, and by still more, as a power capable of resisting the public will, and of spurning the control reserved by the authority which created it—not necessary to the fiscal operations of the treasury—pernicious in its general influence upon our currency—and dangerous, as a political engine, to the principles of our government. A great majority of the people, viewing it with disfavor, had, by electing a Chief Magistrate well known to be decidedly opposed to a renewal of its charter, indicated their unwillingness to prolong its existence. It was not generally anticipated, though by many it was feared, that an attempt ~~would be made by the~~ infliction of public distress, to reverse this condemnatory sentence, so ~~deliberately~~ pronounced by the sovereign power of the country. But it did not comport with the views of the managers of the Bank, nor with the designs of those who had espoused its cause, to submit quietly to this decision. The Bank commenced a rapid curtailment of its issues, and withheld from the public its usual accommodations. Those who directed its operations, as well as those who acted in subservience to its views, loudly proclaimed its ability to inflict on the country universal distress, and announced its determination to do so, if the government did not act in conformity to its wishes. It was represented that its powers of annoyance were unexhausted, and almost inexhaustible; that the country was only in the beginning of its troubles; and that a dismal period was fast approaching when our channels of internal trade would be solitudes—the surplus productions of our soil would find no market—labor be without employment—commerce destroyed—bankruptcy become the inevitable lot of most men engaged in active business:—when in short, all classes of our citizens would be involved in a common ruin. In furtherance of this design to bring the government to the feet of this great monied power, the banks of this State were made the special objects of attack. Their condition was misrepresented; their ability derided; and their solvency questioned.

By these exaggerated representations of the actual difficulties in which we were involved; by these bold and confident predictions of still greater embarrassments about to follow; and by the assaults made upon the credit and solvency of our local banks, a general panic was created; individual credit was impaired, public confidence shaken, and the resources which the country possessed, and which were sufficient, if brought into use, to relieve it, were withheld.

No relief was to be expected from a change of policy on the part of the Bank, without a submission to its requirements;—a submission which would necessarily concede to it the power, not only to over-rule the public will, but to impose its commands on the government by its ability and disposition to oppress and harass the people in their business pursuits.

The advocates of this institution exercised a controlling influence over one branch of the National Legislature, and it was therefore equally vain to hope for relief from Congress, without the same degrading submission. Under these circumstances, the people of this State could look to no quarter but to their State Government, for such relief as their character would permit them to accept—a relief without the surrender of their principles. Acting in obedience to a high sense of duty to its constituents, the last Legislature interposed in their behalf its protecting power, by authorising certain commissioners to pledge the credit of the State, if the condition of the people should require it, to the amount of six millions of dollars, for the purpose of relieving the public distress. Provision was made for placing the money, in case it should become necessary to raise any, where it would be most available to counteract the efforts which had already been too successful in destroying our prosperity, and from the continuance of which much future injury was apprehended. The wisdom of this measure was rendered most manifest by the good effects which speedily followed its adoption. The panic began immediately thereafter to subside; public confidence revived; the aggressive operations of the Bank of the U. S. and its partizans, soon became ineffectual: as the spring opened, business of all kinds resumed its wonted activity; the pecuniary embarrassment passed away; money at length became unusually abundant; the bold and confident predictions of general ruin were falsified; and the people of this State have enjoyed, during the past season, a high degree of prosperity. It will not, I trust, be attributing too much efficacy to the Loan Law, passed by your predecessors, to ascribe to it no inconsiderable agency in producing this favorable change in our condition.

It is worthy of particular remark, that these signal benefits have been obtained by the mere preparation to meet and repel the evils which the people then suffered, and those with which they were menaced. I am happy to announce to you, that the Commissioners have not been under the necessity of exercising the powers confided to them by this law. The credit of the State has not been pledged for any amount whatever, nor has any money been borrowed or loaned by them. The country has entirely recovered from pecuniary embarrassment, and no unfavorable change in this respect can be anticipated before the first day of February, when this law expires by its own limitation; I feel, therefore, authorized to give the most positive assurance that no act under it will be done by the Commissioners.

It is conceded that this measure was of an extraordinary character, and could be properly resorted to only under a strong necessity arising from an extraordinary state of things. Such was our situation when it was adopted. The well-being of the whole State was put in jeopardy by a powerful monied institution, acting apparently on the consciousness of its uncontrollable power, alien to our feelings and our interests, and intent on accomplishing its selfish objects by inflicting injury upon the public. The manner of its attack and the means used to compel submission to its demands were not to be regarded otherwise than as the aggressions of a public enemy, and as such were to be repelled by resorting, if necessary, to the resources of the State. The promptitude and energy with which the Legislature prepared to resist its hostility, arrested the progress of its measures of annoyance, and restored prosperity to the State, without using the public credit, without creating any debt, or imposing any burden upon the people; and without encumbering their property or in any manner impairing their resources. When the imperious circumstances which called for this measure, and the benefits conferred upon all classes of our citizens in all parts of the State, by its mere adoption, are calmly and candidly considered, I am persuaded that it will command a still more decided and general approbation than it has yet received.

Our constituents have a common interest in the prompt and efficient administration of the laws. To secure to them the full benefit of this essential requisite of a good government, of which, to some extent, they are deprived by the great amount of business now devolved on the Court of Chancery and the Supreme Court, it appears to me that some modification of our judiciary has become necessary. My views on this subject were submitted to the last Legislature. I take the liberty to refer you to them, and to renew the recommendations then made, as well in relation to an amendment of the system, as in favor of the justice of providing an adequate compensation for the important and arduous services performed by some of our judicial officers.

In the whole range of your duties, there is no subject in which the interests of the people are more deeply involved, or which calls for higher efforts of legislative wisdom, than the cause of Education. The fund already provided by the State for the support of common schools is large, but not so ample as the exceedingly great importance of the object demands.

The special subjects in relation to common schools, to which I am anxious your attention should be particularly directed, are; a provision for supplying competent teachers; improvements in the methods of instruction; and the faithful and economical application of the funds to such objects, and in such a manner, as will insure the best results. An incipient step has already been taken in regard to educating teachers. By an act of the last Legislature, the surplus income of the Literature fund, over twelve thousand dollars, is put at the disposal of the Regents of the University, to be by them distributed to such academies, subject to their visitation, as they may select; and to be devoted exclusively to educating common school teachers. The sum which they now have, applicable to this object, is about ten thousand dollars; and the condition of the Literature fund warrants the expectation that it will be about three thousand dollars annually hereafter. A plan will probably be adopted at the approaching session of the Board of Regents, for carrying into effect, in the most efficient manner, this wholesome measure; and I indulge the hope that it will have an auspicious influence upon our system of common school education.

Eight hundred and thirty-five towns and wards (the whole number in the State,) have made reports for the year 1833. There were nine thousand eight hundred and sixty-five school districts; the whole number of children between the ages of five and sixteen years in the State was five hundred and thirty-four thousand and two, and the number instructed in the common schools in 1833 was five hundred and thirty-one thousand two hundred and forty.

The public money distributed to the common schools was three hundred and sixteen thousand one hundred and fifty-three dollars and ninety-three cents. Of this sum, one hundred thousand dollars was contributed by the common school fund, and eighteen thousand five hundred and thirty-eight dollars and fifty-six cents by local funds belonging to the towns. The amount contributed by the inhabitants of the districts was three hundred and ninety-eight thousand one hundred and thirty-seven dollars and four cents. These sums, amounting to seven hundred and fourteen thousand two hundred and ninety dollars and ninety-seven cents, (excepting a few thousand dollars expended in the city of New-York on school houses,) have been paid to teachers for their wages. The whole amount expended during the year 1833 on the common schools, cannot fall short of one million two hundred thousand dollars.

The number of academies subject to the visitation of the Regents of the University, which made reports last year, was sixty-seven; and the number of students in them at the time their reports were made, was five thousand five hundred and six.

In 1827, the Literature fund was greatly augmented; and the Regents were thereby enabled to increase the sum distributed annually to the academies, from six thousand dollars to ten thousand dollars. The number of academies then subject to the visitation of the Regents, which reported, was thirty-three; and the number of students in them was two thousand four hundred and forty. The number of students in the academies who had studied the classics and higher branches of English education, and with reference to whom the distribution of the Literature fund is apportioned, was last year three thousand three hundred and ninety. In 1827, the number of such students was only seven hundred and nine. Thus it appears that since 1827, the number of academies has doubled; the number of students much more than doubled; and the number of those who have pursued the classics and the higher branches of English studies, has increased more than fourfold. This gratifying result may be ascribed, in no inconsiderable degree, to the enlarged and liberal patronage extended to them by the government.

There are seven colleges in this State, including the University in the city of New-York; two of which are exclusively devoted to medical instruction. According to the returns made to the Regents of the University last year, the number of students in all of them was one thousand one hundred and thirty-five.

Upon the whole I think we have reason to be satisfied with the present condition of our higher schools and seminaries. In regard to the common schools, considering their great importance in a political and moral point of view, the efforts of the Legislature should not be intermitted until the system shall be so improved as to secure to the children of all classes and conditions of our population such an education as will qualify them to fulfil, in a proper manner, the duties appertaining to whatever may be their respective pursuits and conditions of life.

The funds dedicated to education and literature are securely invested, productive in revenue, and effective in diffusing among the people those blessings for which they were wisely provided. The capital of the Common School fund is now one million seven hundred and ninety-one thousand three hundred and twenty-one dollars and seventy-seven cents, and the revenue from it last year was one hundred and four thousand three hundred and ninety dollars and seventy-five cents, which somewhat exceeds the sum annually distributed to the common schools.

The capital of the Literature fund is two hundred and sixty-two thousand five hundred and seventy-three dollars and ten cents, and it produced last year a revenue of fifteen thousand five hundred and ten dollars and eight cents. Of this sum twelve thousand dollars is to be distributed by the Regents of the University to the academies subject to their visitation, and appropriated exclusively to paying the salaries of tutors. The remainder is put at the disposal of the Regents, for the purpose of instructing teachers of common schools.

The income from all the canals and the Canal Fund for the last fiscal year, was one million eight hundred and thirteen thousand four hundred and eighteen dollars and seventy-three cents. The whole canal debt on the 30th of September last, was seven millions and thirty-four thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine dollars and sixty-eight cents, of which four millions nine hundred and thirty four thousand six hundred and fifty-two dollars and sixty-eight cents is the unpaid balance of the debt created for the construction of the Erie and Champlain canals. For the payment of this balance, funds had accumulated on the 30th September last to the amount of three millions and two thousand five hundred and seventy-six dollars and thirty cents.

The Erie and Champlain canal fund has yielded a revenue during the last fiscal year, beyond all the charges upon it, of one million and thirty-five thousand six hundred and sixty-four dollars and ninety-two cents: the tolls alone exceeded these charges five hundred and eighty-seven thousand eight hundred and fifty dollars and sixty-one cents.

The Bank fund is two hundred and eighty-nine thousand and forty-six dollars and forty-three cents. It has increased du ing the last year more than one hundred thousand dollars. The extent to which the banks are required to contribute to this fund is half of one per cent on their respective capitals for six years only, unless some of it should be needed for the purposes for which it was created—an event scarcely to be apprehended considering the present stability of these institutions, and the almost certain assurance the public has for their prudent management, by reason of the wise supervision to which they are subjected.

The General Fund is now reduced to one hundred and ninety thousand five hundred and ninety-six dollars and sixty-two cents. It was not, I believe, originally intended that the capital of this fund should be used to furnish the means of supporting the government. The income from it was never adequate to that object, though it might have been so, but for the encroachments made upon it to establish useful institutions, and to promote the improvement of the State. More than seven millions of dollars of its capital, and of income from sources which belonged to it, have been taken for the Canal Fund, and the Literature and Common School Funds.

From the origin of our government down to a late period, taxes were imposed whenever the condition of the treasury required it, to raise the means of defraying our ordinary expenses. Taxation was discontinued in 1826, not because the income of the General Fund (the capital of which was then only two millions thirty-seven thousand nine hundred and thirty-six dollars and thirty-five cents) was supposed to be sufficient to meet the charges on the treasury; but with the deliberate intention of relieving the people from further burdens, until the capital of that fund should be exhausted. The policy of this course was questionable, and was decidedly opposed by the officer who then had the charge of the finances of the State. What was then foreseen by all as inevitable—the exhaustion of this fund—has happened; but not so soon as was anticipated. Without being aided by the avails of any general tax upon the property of our citizens, it has, for the last eight years, supplied the principal means not only of supporting the government, but of paying the numerous and liberal appropriations made within that period for other objects. These appropriations have absorbed a large proportion of it. Since the discontinuance of the general tax, more than five hundred and eighty thousand dollars have been paid for deficiencies in the revenues of lateral canals; for Indian annuities; for draining the Cayuga marshes, and for the support of the deaf and dumb; and three hundred and twenty thousand and three dollars and seventy-four cents, for the State prisons, which have now ceased to be a charge upon the treasury. The sums for these five objects alone, together with two hundred and eighty-three thousand six hundred and sixteen dollars and sixteen cents of the capital of the General Fund, transferred to the Literature and Common School Funds in 1827, amount to nearly three-fifths as much as the entire General Fund at the time the State tax was discontinued.

In this way the treasury has at length become exhausted, and the public exigencies will admit of no longer delay in providing funds to defray the ordinary expenses of the government, and to satisfy appropriations already made, and such as may be made hereafter.

I do not indulge the expectation that so unwise a course will be taken as to supply the means required for these purposes, by loans, without creating some special fund to pay the debt that will be thus contracted. Such a fund can only be raised by taxation, or by providing at this time for the restoration (when the existing pledge will permit it to be done) of the whole or some part of the monies which have been diverted from the General Fund to constitute the Canal Fund.

These sources have contributed to the Canal Fund, five millions of dollars; and you ought now to settle the question, whether any and what part shall be returned to the treasury. If it shall be determined that none of it shall be refunded, then, in my opinion, the levying of a general tax is inevitable, and should not be delayed.

Proceedings were commenced by the last Legislature, to release the auction and salt duties from the constitutional pledge by which they are appropriated to the Canal Fund, and to restore them to the General Fund. As this can be effected only by an amendment of the Constitution, your concurrence, as well as that of a majority of the electors, in the measure, will be necessary to carry it into effect. If it should be adopted, and the revenue from these sources be as abundant as it has been hitherto, it will be nearly or quite sufficient to defray the ordinary expenses of the government: But two years or more must elapse before it can be made available as the means of replenishing the treasury.

The operations of the canals for the last year present most gratifying results: The business done on them has exceeded in amount that of any previous season. Notwithstanding the rate of tolls was reduced in January last, twenty-five per cent on merchandize; ten per cent on wheat, flour, beef, pork, butter and cheese, and considerably on many other articles, the income of the Erie and Champlain canals, from this source alone, during the last fiscal year which ended on the thirtieth September, was one million three hundred and thirteen thousand one hundred and fifty-five dollars and eighty-four cents. The tolls of the last fiscal year are only eleven thousand two hundred and sixty-five dollars and seventy-nine cents less than those of the previous year; the business on the Erie and Champlain canals has, therefore, increased nearly in the ratio of the reduction of the tolls.

Provision was made at the last session of the Legislature for doubling the locks on the Erie canal, between Albany and Syracuse. I regret that this measure was not accompanied with another, almost equally necessary, providing for the enlargement of the capacity of the canal: For I deem it important that the new locks should be made with reference to this latter improvement. As the Commissioners have not yet begun to construct them, it is worthy of your consideration whether you should not now authorize this enlargement, and direct the new locks to be made in conformity thereto.

On each of the other canals, the tolls of the last year, although the rates were reduced as above stated, have exceeded those of the preceding year; and the business on them has therefore considerably increased. Although the tolls collected on these minor canals have increased, they have been insufficient to pay the interest on the debt created for their construction, and to defray the expenses for repairs. An advance from the treasury, for the year ending thirtieth September, has been required, of twelve thousand six hundred and forty-nine dollars and eighty-three cents, for the Oswego canal; three thousand seven hundred and sixty-one dollars and seventy-six cents, for the Cayuga and Seneca canal; forty thousand seven hundred and twenty-three dollars and fifty-five cents, for the Chemung canal; and twelve thousand eight hundred and twenty-nine dollars and eighty-two cents, for the Crooked lake canal. It is proper to observe that these canals receive no credit on account of the increase of business on the Erie canal, to which they in some measure contribute.

The whole of the Chenango canal, together with all the works connected with it, except two reservoirs, (which may not be necessary,) is under contract, and is to be completed before the first of November, 1836. The circumstances of the times have been very favorable in regard to the expense of this work, and it is believed it will be completed for a sum not much exceeding one million seven hundred thousand dollars.

Your deliberations on the subject of internal improvements will be regarded by the whole State with interest, and by many sections of it with intense anxiety. It is important to the general welfare, that our system should be carried on progressively in the manner best calculated to diffuse its benefits as generally and equally as practicable. With a view to obtain the best results in this respect, your particular attention should be turned towards settling a system of finance in relation to this branch of public expenditure. Our own experience on the subject of internal improvements, as well as that of other States, forbids the hope that any public works hereafter to be constructed by the State, will yield an income, for a considerable time after they are completed, sufficient to keep them in repair and pay the interest on the debt created for their construction. The suggestion now made in relation to a system of finance is not new. Every State which has embarked in undertakings involving large expenditures has, at the same time it authorized them, provided the means for paying the interest on the public debt to be thereby created. Our treasury was deprived of the revenue from some of its most prolific sources, for the purpose of constituting the Canal Fund, by the very act which provided for the construction of our first public works. The States of Pennsylvania and Ohio laid a general tax on the people for the same purpose, when they commenced their system of internal improvements. Such a measure was considered necessary, by us and by them, to sustain the public credit; and public credit was rightfully regarded as necessary to insure success to these undertakings. We have omitted this important part of the system in regard to our lateral canals, and the consequence has been, that the fund for the general support of the government, has had to sustain them for the last five years, and has advanced for that purpose, two hundred and forty-nine thousand, six hundred and forty-six dollars and twenty-nine cents; of which the sum of ninety-three thousand, eight hundred and eighty-one dollars and sixteen cents was paid during the last year.

The burden of supplying the deficiency in the revenues of these canals, which is estimated by the Commissioners of the Canal Fund at sixty thousand two hundred and thirty dollars and fifty-three cents for this year, (and it will not probably be much less for several years to come,) still rests upon the treasury; and the treasury will not have the means, unless you provide them, to discharge it, or even to pay the ordinary expenses of the government without resorting to loans. The effect of a departure, in this particular, from our original system in regard to internal improvements, shows the wisdom of that system, and admonishes us of the necessity of returning to it. No government that had a proper regard for its public credit or its permanent prosperity, ever contracted a public debt without providing a revenue for the payment of the interest at least, if not for its final extinguishment; and none that neglects to make such a provision, but supplies its necessities, whether ordinary or extraordinary, by loans, and provides for the interest on them by new loans, can long prosecute successfully public enterprises requiring large expenditures. I therefore deem it essential to the success of the system of internal improvements that you should in some way provide adequate means for paying the interest on the public debt that must be incurred by its further prosecution.

Before you authorize the construction of any public work, it will be proper for you to compare the expenditure it will require with the benefits it will confer. In relation to the former it should be borne in mind that every public work which we have executed has cost nearly double, and in some instances more than double the estimate at the time it was authorized. In relation to the benefits, your views should be liberal and extended. They should not be confined to the state of things that will exist immediately on the completion of the work, but should have regard to the progressive advancement of the region of the State to be laid open by it; to the probable development of new resources; to the extension and increase of internal trade; and even to the local advantages it will confer. Having in my first message stated my views of what should be the character, productiveness and other attendant advantages of any proposed work which it would be proper, in my opinion, for the State to execute, I take the liberty of referring you to them, as substantially those I now entertain of the same subject.

The projects for improvements of considerable magnitude, which will probably be presented to your consideration at the present session, are; a rail-road from the city of New-York to Lake Erie through the southern tier of counties; the Black River canal the Rochester and Olean canal; a Ship canal from the Hudson river to Lake Ontario; and another around the Niagara Falls. The line of the proposed rail-road passes through an interesting and rapidly improving section of the State, and in addition to the common advantages of such a work, one of a more general character and affecting more immediately the commercial interests of the State, is urged in its favor. It is anticipated that by this improvement an intercourse, for commercial purposes, with the extensive and flourishing regions of the West, would be opened earlier in the spring, and continued later in the autumn, than it now is or can be by the Erie canal.

A law passed at the last session of the Legislature, directed the Executive to appoint a competent and experienced engineer to survey a route for this rail-road. Such an appointment was made, and the survey has been executed. I am informed by Mr. Benjamin Wright, the engineer selected for this purpose, that the map and profile required to be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, will be completed about the fifteenth instant. These, when executed in the manner required by law, will assist you in coming to a correct conclusion on the subject of this improvement.

In relation to two of the projects I have mentioned—the Black River canal and the Rochester and Olean canal—I will only observe, that they are improvements in which a large and enterprising portion of our constituents feel a deep interest, and which they believe to be of great public importance. The Legislature at the last session directed surveys of the routes for them to be made, and reports to be laid before you. When they are received, you will possess authentic information to guide your action in relation to these improvements.

The Government of the Canadas is making vigorous efforts to render safe and easy the navigation of the St. Lawrence, with a view to direct the business on Lake Ontario and the region above and around it, to Montreal and Quebec. One of the principal objects of the proposed ship canal, is to countervail these efforts, and draw this business to the city of New-York. The enlargement of the Erie canal, will, to some extent, contribute to this object. It will be for you to determine, whether the additional advantages of a ship navigation are of sufficient importance to call for the construction of such a work.

The attention of the last Legislature was directed to the importance of removing the obstructions to the navigation of the Hudson river; but as this work has been since undertaken by the General Government, it will not be necessary for you to act on this subject.

Other projects of internal improvement than those I have mentioned, have occupied the attention of the people in different sections of the State. Should any of them be presented to the Legislature, I trust they will receive the consideration which they merit.

As contributing in some measure to the same ends for which works of public improvement are undertaken, I would bring to your notice the subject of common highways: I refer you to the suggestions in my message of last year on this subject, and desire that it may receive your favorable consideration.

Our penitentiaries have been properly regarded as objects of great public concern, and have occupied for several years the anxious attention of the Legislature. Its views have been directed to them as the means of diminishing crimes, reforming offenders and relieving the State from the burden of supporting convicts. Our first efforts on this subject were experiments, made without the light of much experience; and the results were quite as favorable as could have been reasonably anticipated. Though our system has been progressively improved, it has not yet been brought to that degree of perfection of which it is susceptible. The facts disclosed by the officers who have had the immediate supervision of our prisons, and by the reports of the several committees appointed by the Legislature to examine them, will direct your attention to existing defects, and aid you in applying proper remedies, and adopting such further improvements as have been suggested by our own experience or by that of other States.

One of the desirable objects, which we have aimed at, has been to make the avails of the labor of convicts defray all the expense of these establishments. In order to produce such a result, various kinds of mechanical business have been introduced into them. The earnings of the convicts during the two last years have been more than sufficient to pay the ordinary expenses of the prison and to furnish the means of enlarging them and adding to their accommodations; and if a regard to the interests of a numerous portion of our fellow citizens should not require a different direction to be given to this labor, the prisons would cease to be a charge upon the treasury, and probably become a source of revenue to the State: but it never can comport with just and fair legislation to produce such a result by directing this labor in such a manner as to cause it to operate oppressively upon any particular branches of industry. It is an essential principle of our government, that burdens and benefits are to be shared equally by all, and I do not doubt that you will consider it your solemn duty, as legislators, to give practical effect to this principle. The mechanics in almost every section of the State have considered their interests injuriously affected by the manner in which the labor performed in the prisons is brought into competition with theirs, as they appealed to the last Legislature for relief. The complaint is so large and respectable a portion of our citizens commands its prompt attention, and it directed commissioners to be appointed to examine into the government, economy and discipline of the prisons, and particularly into all the matters which constituted the grounds of this complaint. The report of these commissioners, which, I presume, will be made at an early day in this session, will bring the whole subject in all its relations and bearings before you, accompanied with such suggestions and authentic information as will enable you to appreciate the extent of the evils complained of, and to apply to them an effectual remedy.

Our fellow citizens engaged in mechanical pursuits confidently rely upon the Legislature to remove any partial burden resulting incidentally from the present mode of employing convicts, and I trust you will readily grant them such protection in this respect as they may properly claim from a government founded on the principle of equal rights and common privileges. No considerations connected merely with the income of the prisons should be permitted to interpose any obstacle to removing all just grounds of complaint. This object, I am persuaded, may be attained without abandoning the present system of discipline, or defeating the main ends for which our penitentiaries were established.

Another effect resulting from the introduction of numerous mechanical branches of business into our State prisons is also a subject of grievance to the mechanics, and is worthy of your considerate attention. The necessary consequence of instructing convicts in mechanical trades is to bring them, when discharged, into more frequent association with mechanics than with any other class of citizens. Those employed in such pursuits are, in this manner, more exposed than others to the demoralizing effects of this vicious companionship. While those who have been subjected to the discipline of our penitentiaries should be strengthened in their resolutions to reform their conduct, and all the avenues should be opened to facilitate their return to a correct course of life, and to encourage them to become useful members of society, great care should be taken to do this in such a manner as not to impair the moral condition of any description of citizens, or even to expose them, either in their own or the public estimation, to any diminution of the respect and consideration due alike to all.

The number of prisoners in the Auburn prison on the twenty-fourth day of December was six hundred and fifty, and in the Mount-Pleasant prison, on the first day of that month, eight hundred and twenty-eight.

The number received into the two prisons during the last year, is about the same as that of the preceding year: being in the Auburn prison five less, and in that at Mount-Pleasant, nine more. The number remaining in the Mount-Pleasant prison on the first of December last was one less than it was at that time in the year 1833, and in the Auburn prison thirty-seven less than in 1833.

The earnings and profits of the Auburn prison from all sources during the year ending thirtieth of September last were forty-seven thousand seven hundred and twenty-three dollars and twenty-seven cents; and the expenses for general support and ordinary repairs were forty-two thousand two hundred and twenty-eight dollars and ninety-four cents. The income of the Mount-Pleasant prison for the same period was seventy-six thousand nine hundred and ninety dollars and eighty-four cents. The expenditure for the general support during that time was fifty-five thousand five hundred and ninety-three dollars and eighty-five cents; nine thousand three hundred and ninety dollars and four cents of the balance was paid to the corporation of the city of New-York, to satisfy a demand due to it for supporting the female convicts. There has been expended at the Auburn prison eight thousand three hundred and eighteen dollars and seventy-two cents, for additions and improvements, and at the Mount-Pleasant prison for improvement two thousand four hundred and sixty-six dollars and thirty-four cents.

The income of the two prisons over their ordinary expense exclusive of the support of the female convicts, was twenty-six thousand eight hundred and ninety-one dollars and fifty-two cents for the last fiscal year; and over all expenses, ordinary and extraordinary, six thousand seven hundred and sixteen dollars and forty-one cents.

In my annual message of last year several subjects, in my judgment, worthy of the attention of the Legislature were then presented for consideration, accompanied with such remarks as were deemed appropriate. I shall merely allude to them again, without however, detaining you by repeating what was then said, or enlarging upon the reasons which induced me to commend them to the favor of the Legislature. These subjects were;

The erection of a separate prison for female convicts;

The exceptionable condition of most of the county jails, as places of punishment for persons convicted of minor offences;

The improvements required in the police of most of the county poor-houses;

The claims of the blind for assistance in obtaining the means of instruction; and,

The establishment of an asylum for the insane poor. The founding of such an asylum was then, and still is regarded by me as an object deeply interesting to humanity; and it was urged upon the last Legislature, not merely for the purpose of furnishing this class of forlorn fellow-beings with a comfortable subsistence, (for this is now done in an imperfect manner by the general provision for the support of paupers,) but as the necessary, and to many of them, the only means of restoring them to mental soundness. Their claim to legislative aid is certainly not impaired by delay; and I sincerely hope it will receive your favorable consideration.

Recent events, and particularly the discussions relative to the renewal of the charter of the Bank of the United States, have turned the thoughts of the people towards the character of our circulating medium, and the tendency of banking institutions and other corporations. Public opinion has every where accorded a full measure of approbation to the general views of the national executive on the subject of a metallic currency; and the people of this State now call in no equivocal voice upon their Legislature to aid in accomplishing this object, by withdrawing from circulation a portion of the notes of our banks, with a view to facilitate the introduction and circulation of gold and silver coin. For this purpose it is recommended that provision should be made for prohibiting the issue and circulation of all bank notes under the denomination of five dollars. The benefits of such a measure would be manifold; it would give the public a better currency, composin part of the precious metals; it would relieve, partially at least, the laboring classes from the losses and inconvenience to which they are exposed from uncurrent and spurious bills; it would, in some measure, prevent the ruinous consequences not only to individuals, but to the public, resulting from the sudden expansions and contractions to which a paper currency is constantly liable; and it would give greater stability to the business transactions of the country. Attempts have heretofore been made to adopt this measure, but were probably defeated by the apprehension that the small bills issued by the banks of adjoining States, although their circulation in this State was prohibited by law, would be substituted for those of our own institutions, and that the evil would be thereby continued, while the advantage of the circulation would be transferred from our own banks to those of other States. To remove this objection, and to render the measure effective, the Executive was directed by a resolution of the last Legislature, to open a correspondence with the Governors of the adjoining States, with a view of obtaining the adoption of a similar measure in each of them. This duty has been performed, and there is reason to believe that the subject is viewed by the people of those States, as it is here, in a favorable light, and that they will co-operate with us in this movement for remedying the evils of a paper circulating medium, and procuring a sound currency.

Though I do not anticipate any serious objection to the measure of suppressing the circulation of small bills, there may be some diversity of opinion as to the time and manner of effecting it. In determining upon these, particular regard should be paid to the state of things as it now is, and is likely to be for some time to come. Within a short period, the concerns of an enormous monied institution, to which the people of this State owe several millions of dollars, will probably be closed, and it would not be prudent to assume that this will be done with any special regard to public convenience. A considerable portion of this debt, and of the business which has been done by this institution, will be necessarily and gradually transferred to the local banks. Such a transfer, under the most favorable circumstances, would cause some inconvenience, and it might become very serious, if the ability of these banks should be greatly impaired, or our present extended system of credit rudely shaken by any ill-timed measures in regard to them.

By a resolution passed at the last session of the Legislature, each bank in this State is required to report to you this day, the amount of the several denominations of bills under that of five dollars, which it had put in circulation, as money, and which were outstanding on the first day of December last. These are the bills which are proposed to be withdrawn; and the amount of them now in circulation is estimated at about four millions of dollars. The object in withdrawing them, is not to diminish the amount of the circulating medium, for that would operate injuriously, by reducing the wages of labor and the price of property, but to introduce instead of this paper money, a like amount of gold and silver coin.

There should be no hesitation in providing at the present session of the Legislature, not only against the further issues of each denomination of these small bills, but also for the withdrawal of those now in circulation, at a proper time. The withdrawal should be made at a successive period for each denomination, with the view to secure an effectual substitution of the coins for the paper money withdrawn, and to prevent a sudden and injurious contraction of the circulating medium.

In relation to fixing these periods, it should be borne in mind that we have now an unusual quantity of the precious metals. This circumstance will facilitate the operation of substituting coin for the paper to be called in, and allow it to be conveniently done at an earlier period than that which could be prudently selected for executing this measure if there was a scarcity, or no more than the ordinary quantity of specie in the country. It is also proper that you should consider the inconvenience which might result from a too sudden withdrawal of the small bills from circulation, in connection with the unfavorable effects which the continuance of their circulation has upon our currency and business, and the advantages which their withdrawal will secure to the public at large. To ensure success to the measure proposed, it will be indispensably necessary to make effectual provision for preventing the circulation, in this State, of the small bills issued by the banks of other States.

I conceive it to be my duty to repeat the recommendation which was made to your predecessors in relation to reducing the amount of circulation now allowed to the banks. It should not, in my judgment, be permitted, in any case, to exceed the amount of their respective capitals, nor should their credits be allowed to exceed twice that amount.

Charters of banks are applied for, and granted upon the alledged ground that they are required for the public good; but it is the nature of such institutions to be less regardful of this consideration than of their own pecuniary interests: their conduct is therefore very properly an object of constant scrutiny. Any contrivances which they may resort to, with a design to enhance their profits, should be promptly suppressed. I have reason to believe that in this respect, the public have had just grounds of complaint against some of our banks.

Instead of discounting notes according to the usual course of business, they have required drafts of their customers payable at some distant place, knowing that the drawers had not and did not expect to have funds at such place to pay them. When these drafts arrived at maturity, others were offered to the same banks, and taken in payment of the former. A discount of one per cent beyond the legal rate of interest has been exacted on these successive drafts; and by this mode of doing business, those who have been under the necessity of applying for accommodations to the banks which have resorted to this practice, have been subjected to pay an exorbitant sum for the use of the money thus obtained.— Such a mode of oppressive extortion did not long escape the vigilance of the Bank Commissioners, and I have reason to believe they exerted, to good effect, all the authority they possessed to cause it to be discontinued; but I doubt whether their powers are sufficient to enable them to check this practice, and prevent a recurrence to it. You have the power to correct not only this but all other practices inconsistent with fair dealings on the part of these institutions towards the public, and I presume you will consider it your duty to exercise it promptly, by applying it directly yourselves, or through the agency of the Bank Commissioners. The practice to which I have alluded is distinct from the fair business of discounting drafts, and the remedy to be applied to it should leave the right to discount them, in the regular course of business, unimpaired.— To give to the ordinary business of loaning money the form of buying or selling drafts, for the purpose of taking usury with impunity, or as a pretext for extortion, is the practice reprehended. I have no reason to believe it has prevailed in many institutions, and it should not be tolerated in any.

While on the one hand you should act with promptness and vigor in keeping all banks within the sphere of action allowed to them, and in guarding the public against the mischievous perversion or misapplication of their powers and privileges, by restraints, and, if necessary, by annulling their charters; good faith requires, on the other, that such as use their powers and privileges in strict subservience to the purposes for which they were bestowed, should be protected in the enjoyment of them, without any diminution or modification other than may be necessary to give effect to measures of general policy for the public good.

I ought not to pass from this subject without alluding to the conduct of the State banks during the late period of panic and distress. That they, in most instances, exerted their best abilities to administer to the necessities of a suffering community will not, I presume, be questioned; and as little can it be questioned that they would have done this effectually, in spite of the assaults made upon them and upon public credit, with a view to subserve the interests of a great monied monopoly, and to effectuate the purposes of a political party, had not a large portion of that class of our citizens, most interested in sustaining public confidence in our currency, and most exposed to losses by its derangement, been led, by a strange infatuation, to concur in these mischievous designs, and to lend their active efforts to increase the panic, and spread far and wide its ruinous effects.

It is exceedingly difficult to confer particular privileges on a few without derogating from the equal rights of all others. Public opinion requires of you more caution in relation to granting corporate privileges than has been heretofore observed. The right of the Legislature to create corporations is recognized by the constitution, and it may be exercised in many instances harmlessly and even beneficially in regard to the people at large; but in no inconsiderable number of cases, corporate powers and privileges are sought for as furnishing means not allowed to all for acquiring property, or for managing it in a profitable manner without the hazards to which it is exposed in individual hands.

Among the various applications usually presented to the Legislature for acts of incorporation, those for banks have been urged with the greatest earnestness, and it is highly probable several of this kind will be made to you at the present session. One of the strongest arguments that will be offered to you in behalf of them, will be, that banks are attended with many local advantages; that the sections of the State which have none, or not so many as there are in others, and which present better considerations in favor of their particular applications than those that have been successfully urged in other cases, are entitled, on the principle of equality of rights, to a participation in these advantages; and that a departure from the course heretofore pursued on this subject, will be an act of partial legislation and unjust towards them. This argument, which is alike opposed to any temporary suspension and to a permanent change of the course heretofore pursued on this subject, will not be less cogent at any time hereafter than it is now, and, if it is permitted to prevail, the Legislature will still go on as heretofore, multiplying banking institutions, whatever may be the effects upon our present system, or upon our currency. It must be conceded, I think, that banks have been heretofore too freely granted, and that we have enough of them for all the legitimate uses for which they are now wanted; you will, therefore, in my opinion, best promote the public good by refusing to add to their number.

Recent occurrences have tended to restore the militia system to the public estimation which it justly deserves in our government. It has been necessary to resort, more than once within the last year, to the military force to aid the civil magistrates in the city of New-York, in protecting the persons and property of our citizens, and in preserving the public peace. The alacrity with which the several corps performed the duty required of them on these occasions, and the efficient support they afforded the civil authority, in arresting the progress of lawless violence, and maintaining the supremacy of the laws, reflects credit on them, and vindicates the wisdom which regarded and provided for a well-organized militia as an essential part of our political system.

I have heretofore adverted to some changes in the organization of the militia, which, in our present condition, might be made without diminishing its practical benefits, and by which the burdens consequent upon the performance of militia service might be greatly alleviated. These changes can be made only by the General Government; and whatever the Legislature could do to impress on Congress the importance of acting on this subject, has, I believe, been done already by your predecessors. There are, however, some evils resulting from the present system, which it is believed the Legislature is fully competent to remedy. The present mode of punishing delinquents operates oppressively and unjustly in many cases. The number of regimental and battalion courts martial annually organized in the State, is nearly four hundred; and they have cognizance of all delinquencies for the non-performance of duty, and for deficiencies in equipments. From the sentence of any such court, an appeal, if made within twenty days, is allowed to the officer organizing the court; but no other or further means of redress are prescribed or allowed, however great may be the injustice or error of the decision. Notices to delinquents to appear before these tribunals, may, in case of absence, be served by leaving copies thereof at their usual place of abode; and it often happens, that those who have good excuses for not performing military duty, are sentenced to pay fines and penalties without any actual knowledge of the proceedings against them. Before the parties aggrieved are apprised of the decisions of the courts, the right of appeal is frequently lost by the lapse of time. There are also some obvious objections to confining the appeal exclusively to the officers appointing the courts. Relief in cases of manifest hardship, has been formerly sought by applications to the commander-in-chief; but I have denied them, from a conviction that the law does not confer upon him the power to reverse or modify the judgment of these courts. I recommend that the time allowed for an appeal should be extended to twenty days after actual notice that a fine or penalty has been imposed, in every case where the summons to attend the court had not been personally served on the delinquent; and that a further appeal in all cases should be allowed from the decision of the officer ordering the court, to the brigadier-general. To authorize an appeal in such cases to be carried to an officer higher in rank than a commandant of a brigade, might not be necessary for the purposes of justice, and would be attended with much inconvenience.

During the last charter election in the city of New-York, the State arsenal was broken open, and forcible possession taken of the public arms by a mob. An act so flagitious in its character, and tending so directly to bloodshed, called public attention to the exposed situation and insecure condition of this establishment. The Executive was directed, by a resolution of the last Legislature, to enter into a correspondence or negotiation with the common council of that city for an exchange of the present site of the arsenal, together with the buildings thereon, for a more eligible one in the upper part of the city. Such a correspondence has been opened; and it is ascertained that the corporation have several pieces of land eligibly situated for the proposed object, any of which they would very willingly exchange, on terms advantageous to the State, for the site of the present arsenal. With reference to some measures regarding the police of the city, they desire that the exchange should be made as soon as practicable; I therefore recommend that you should consider this subject at an early period in the session.

I conceive it to be of the utmost importance that you should provide effectual means for executing with rigor the act passed in 1829, "to preserve the purity of our elections." The expenditure of money allowed by this act is confined to a few objects, and under no conceivable circumstances could it amount to but a small part of the sums which there is reason to believe have been expended in the recent elections. The elective franchise is the source of all power in our political system; and next in importance to its enjoyment is the preservation of its purity. Power corrupted in its source disorders the whole government. The moral and political condition of the electors has hitherto been sufficiently healthful to counteract the corrupting influence of money, and I hope it may long continue so; but they ought to be shielded, as far as legislation can do it, from all assaults upon their purity. I am disposed to ascribe the increased efforts that appear of late to have been made to influence the elections, by the lavish use of money, to the nature of some of the questions involved in our political contests, rather than to any encouragements such a practice has derived from a supposed decrease of virtue in the electors: but from whatever cause it has arisen, it is dangerous to civil liberty, and ought to be repressed by the Legislature.

The constitution imposes on the Legislature the duty of preventing the sale of lottery tickets within this State. In defiance of the existing law on this subject, the buying and selling of these tickets is extensively carried on in various places. Not only the obligation created by the constitution, but the duty you owe to your constituents, to suppress public evils, requires you to provide more effectually for putting an end to this traffic.

An enumeration of the inhabitants of this State is to be taken this year, and if it should be deemed expedient to procure statistical information in relation to other matters than such as are now required by law, it will be necessary to provide therefor immediately, in order to enable the Secretary of State to prepare and distribute proper blanks within the period allowed for that purpose.

The recent and lamented death of our distinguished fellow citizen, Simeon De Witt, will devolve upon you the duty of electing a successor in the office of Surveyor-General, which he filled with great credit to himself and eminent usefulness to the State, for the long and uninterrupted period of fifty years. I deem it not inappropriate to avail myself of this occasion to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of a most faithful public servant, who devoted almost the whole of a long and active life to the service of this State. In the dawn of manhood he espoused the cause of liberty, and became eminent among our revolutionary patriots. He entered into the service of this State in the infancy of its government, and regarded its advancement with parental solicitude. He aided in founding and in building up most of our public institutions, and has left more, if not more enduring, memorials of his useful services, than any other of our numerous public benefactors. His many private virtues shed lustre upon his public character. A life thus commenced by services and sacrifices in the cause of civil liberty, and well sustained to its end by unremitting labors directed with singleness of purpose to the public good, should be held in just remembrance by those among whom it was spent, and presented as an encouraging example to posterity.

Resolved, That Greene C. Bronson is hereby nominated, on the part of this House, for the office of Attorney-General of this State.

Mr. J. Haskell offered for the consideration of the House, the following recital and resolution, to wit:

Whereas it has been deemed wise and expedient, by the democratic electors of the city and county of New-York, to exact from their representatives a full and open avowal of their principles upon all important political questions involving the safety of their civil institutions; and whereas they have watched with an eye of jealousy to the public good, the welfare of their country, and the prosperity of those institutions, until they saw their liberties slowly but gradually wasting away, and a horde of aristocratic usurers and money changers rising in their stead, and assuming to themselves the right of dictation and mastership; and whereas by partial acts of past legislation, they have suffered their rights to be taken from them, and given to a favored few, without complaint; but believing that it is now time to take from the servant or agent the false power not conferred upon him, and to place him in a situation where he shall no longer rule with a rod of iron, nor deal out to the political gamblers the heart's blood of their country, her liberties, they have required of him a solemn pledge to oppose all monopolies, and to exert all his energies in restoring to its natural health and purity the tottering condition of this great State, and also of the Republic; and as it is the right belonging to the constituent to exact an opinion from their servants in whatever may concern their interest and welfare, and as this house is the constituent body, and answerable to the people for its appointments and actions:

Therefore,

Resolved, (if the Senate concur,) That a committee of three be appointed by this House, to wait upon the Attorney-General and the Treasurer of State, and request their signatures to the following pledge:

THE PLEDGE.

We, the undersigned, do solemnly pledge ourselves, if elected to fill the offices of Attorney-General and State Treasurer, to oppose all monopolies, coming from what quarter they may, or in whatever form; and that we will throw aside all other feelings for the common good, and exert our energies to place upon its legitimate basis the rights and equality of mankind.

Whereas it has been deemed wise and expedient, by the democratic electors of the city and county of New-York, to exact from their representatives a full and open avowal of their principles upon all important political questions involving the safety of their civil institutions; and whereas they have watched with an eye of jealousy to the public good, the welfare of their country, and the prosperity of those institutions, until they saw their liberties slowly but gradually wasting away, and a horde of aristocratic usurers and money changers rising in their stead, and assuming to themselves the right of dictation and mastership; and whereas by partial acts of past legislation, they have suffered their rights to be taken from them, and given to a favored few, without complaint; but believing that it is now time to take from the servant or agent the false power not conferred upon him, and to place him in a situation where he shall no longer rule with a rod of iron, nor deal out to the political gamblers the heart's blood of their country, her liberties, they have required of him a solemn pledge to oppose all monopolies, and to exert all his energies in restoring to its natural health and purity the tottering condition of this great State, and also of the Republic; and as it is the right belonging to the constituent to exact an opinion from their servants in whatever may concern their interest and welfare, and as this house is the constituent body, and answerable to the people for its appointments and actions:

Therefore,

Resolved, (if the Senate concur,) That a committee of three be appointed by this House, to wait upon the Attorney-General and the Treasurer of State, and request their signatures to the following pledge:

THE PLEDGE.

We, the undersigned, do solemnly pledge ourselves, if elected to fill the offices of Attorney-General and State Treasurer, to oppose all monopolies, coming from what quarter they may, or in whatever form; and that we will throw aside all other feelings for the common good, and exert our energies to place upon its legitimate basis the rights and equality of mankind.

A message from the Governor, delivered by his private secretary, was read, in the words following, to wit:

TO THE ASSEMBLY.

GENTLEMEN,

I return to you, without my signature, the accompanying bill, entitled "An act authorising the mayor and common council of the city of Rochester to raise money by tax, for the purpose of erecting a market, and for other purposes;" upon the ground that I have not been able to satisfy myself that it has been passed in the manner required by the Constitution.

This bill proposes to confer on the mayor and common council of the city of Rochester a power or authority which they do not now possess; and, in my opinion, therefore, it falls within the description of bills which require the votes of two-thirds of all the members elected to each branch of the Legislature to be given in favor of them, before they can be passed.

The first section of the bill authorises the mayor and common council of the city of Rochester to assess and collect ten thousand dollars, and to appropriate it to the erection of a new market.

The second section authorises them to sell the premises now occupied as a market, and to appropriate the avails of the same to the purchasing of a site, &c. for erecting a new market thereon.

It appears to me that each of these sections enlarges the powers of the mayor and common council; and if so, they must be considered as altering a body politic or corporate; and consequently the bill containing them cannot be considered by me as duly passed, unless it appears by the certificate of the presiding officer of each branch of the Legislature, that two-thirds of all the members elected to each voted in favor thereof. The bill does not furnish that evidence, and I cannot therefore regard it as having passed by the votes of two-thirds of the members elected.

Not having received the bill until this morning, I have not had an opportunity to examine minutely the former course of legislation on like subjects; but I find several instances in which similar bills have been regarded as two-third bills, and none of like character that have been passed as majority bills. "An act authorising the trustees of the village of Buffalo to raise money by tax, for the extinguishment of fires," (Sess. 1832, chap. 147,) was passed as a two-third bill; also the "Act for the further support and extension of common schools in the city of New-York," passed at the same session, (chap. 119,) was regarded as a two-third bill. It is true that I find several laws in the statute books, passed as majority bills, which authorise the mayor, recorder and aldermen of the city of New-York to raise money; but in each one of them (thus passed) which I have examined, the authority is expressly given to them as supervisors of the city and county of New-York. I am therefore inclined to believe that this fact was made a ground of distinction as to the application of that clause of the Constitution, requiring in certain cases the votes of two-thirds of all the members elected to pass a bill. I do not find that the boards of supervisors of the counties have ever been considered a body politic or corporate, within the meaning and operation of that clause of the Constitution.

At the same time that the bill now under consideration was transmitted to me by you, I received from you another, entitled "An act to authorise the raising of money for the support of the Lancaster school in the city of Hudson." This bill simply empowers the mayor, recorder and commonalty of the city of Hudson to raise four hundred dollars by a tax, and directs them to pay the money over to the trustees of the Lancaster school, who are required to apply the same for the support of it. This act was passed by you as a two-third bill: If it was so, or if either of the others to which I have referred was a two-third bill, then the one under consideration is undoubtedly of that character.

Believing it to be a two-third bill, I return it to you as one sent to me without having been passed by the Assembly in the manner required by the Constitution.

I have not the slightest objection to the provisions of the bill; and shall, if it duly passes by the constitutional vote of two-thirds of the members of both branches of the Legislature, most cordially give it my approval.

W. L. MARCY.

Albany, May 11, 1835.

Thereupon,

Mr. Speaker again put the question whether the House would agree to the final passage of the said bill, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members elected to this House voting in favor thereof, as follows, to wit:

W. L. MARCY.

Albany, May 11, 1835.

A message from the Senate, delivered by Mr. Livingston and Mr. Tracy, was received, informing that the Senate were ready to adjourn.

Ordered, That Mr. Wetmore and Mr. Blatchley wait upon the Governor, and inform him, that unless he has some further business to lay before the Legislature, this House is ready to adjourn.

Ordered, That Mr. Cash and Mr. Hillyer be a committee to wait upon the Senate, and inform them that this House is ready to adjourn.

Mr. Cash reported, that pursuant to the order of the House, Mr. Hillyer and himself had waited upon the Senate, and informed them that this House was ready to adjourn.

Mr. Wetmore reported, that pursuant to the order of the House, Mr. Blatchley and himself had waited upon the Governor, and informed him, that unless he had some further business to lay before the Legislature, this House was ready to adjourn; and that the Governor had been pleased to say that he had no further communication to make to the Legislature.

On motion of Mr. Patterson,

Resolved unanimously, That the thanks of this House be presented to the Hon. Charles Humphrey, Speaker of the Assembly, for the able, dignified and impartial manner with which he has discharged the arduous and responsible duties of the chair; and that in retiring from the station he has so honorably and faithfully filled, he will carry with him the best wishes of the members of this House.

To which his Honor the Speaker made the following reply:

GENTLEMEN,

Our public services having ended, we are about to return to our individual avocations, and to the enjoyments and duties of domestic life.

On looking back through the period which we have passed together, we can find great cause for mutual congratulation, and but little for unpleasant reflection. Our proceedings have been distinguished by as much of harmony and good temper, and as little embittered by party asperity or personal collision, as has been the lot of any of our predecessors in this Hall. I may not, on this occasion, speak of the talents of this House, individually or collectively; but I may, without impropriety, claim for its members the credit which is due to industrious and patient labor in the public service.

A very small and comparatively unimportant proportion of the business submitted to us has been left undisposed of; and in the amount and importance of what has been accomplished, taking into view the increasing population and business of the State, our proceedings will be found to sustain a favorable comparison with those of any former session.

In this moment of separation, it affords us a melancholy pleasure to turn from the cold and perplexing business of legislation, to the indulgence of those kindlier feelings connected with the social relations which we sustain towards each other.

When we came together in this hall from the various sections of the State, many of us met for the first time. Many of us then met with the indifference with which strangers regard each other, who will now part with the regrets which attend the departure of friends. As men, we can appreciate the sentiments which such a relation inspires. Statesmen can appreciate the influence of such a cause upon the stability of our political institutions.

I take this opportunity, with great pleasure, to acknowledge my obligations to the Clerk of the House, for the aid which I have received from his intelligence and experience. The progress of business has been greatly facilitated by the methodical arrangements in his department, and the prompt attention of those connected with it. It is also due to the officers of the House, to bear testimony to the fidelity with which they have filled their several stations, on which the preservation of order and the comfort of members essentially depend.

I entered upon the duties of the chair with a distrust of my ability to discharge them. They are always arduous, often delicate and embarrassing. It has been my endeavor, by an adherence to our rules, and a strict impartiality with regard to members, and such attention to the general subjects of legislation as my peculiar duties would permit, to promote the despatch of business, and retain the confidence of the House. That I have succeeded in the latter respect beyond my hopes, I have the gratifying assurance contained in the resolution which you have just passed, and in the unanimity with which it was adopted.

Gentlemen, I have throughout the session been cheered and encouraged in my official labors by your constant and liberal support. In our personal intercourse, courtesy and kindness have prevailed without an exception. For all this, I cannot content myself with rendering you a mere formal acknowledgment of thanks. I feel that I owe you a deep and lasting debt of gratitude. With my best wishes for your prosperity and happiness, I now bid you, each and all, an affectionate farewell.

The Speaker then adjourned the House sine die.

P. REYNOLDS, JR. Clerk.
